What has been the best aspect of this course?

- Always discussing everyone's ideas and opinions together to evaluate a lesson. I really liked how the professor explained everything, did several workshops to improve the writing and analyzing skills of the students.
- Learning different styles of writing.
- Learning to write better
- I enjoyed the discussions that took place on the genre to be written before writing the essay. Having group activity in the classroom helped with comprehension of the genre and made the papers easier to write.
- Mainly all work being accessible online.
- N/A
- n/a
- The readings in the text book was interesting.
- The small class size.
- Being taught by someone who actually really knows their subject was probably the best part of the course.
- The professor helped me learn better strategies to improve my writing in and out of class.
- The writings that were required were not as difficult as one would think. They helped me expand my vocabulary and what was an appropriate way to approach them.
- When i got a good grade on an essay.
- N/A
- Thinking outside the box. Learning to think outside the normal and dig a little deeper.
- The part where everything we had to do for the class was made pretty clear and the teacher gave us good communication for our homework.
- That I managed to learn something new on how to write essays in college.

Would you change anything about this course? If so, what would you change?

Would you change anything about this course? If so, what would you change?

- The teaching method
- The course was not like a typical English class to me. The class wasn't as hard as I expected an English class to be so I wouldn't change anything.
- The amount of book work being done in class instead of lecture.
- N/A
- putting grades in blackboard. writing what is due in syllabus.
- Give more in class time.
- The amount of work is too much in some periods of time.
- I would probably change some of the topics we had to write about or read about. Some of the articles we read were really uninteresting.
- I would hope the professor would better the communications on due dates and requirements on certain assignments in and out of class.
- N/A
- yes, better communication
- N/A
- I would just change it by following the syllabus and not assigning work on the fly.
- There really isn't anything I would change about this course.
- I would change nothing.

What do you think the instructor's greatest strengths are?

- She understands a student's strength and weaknesses; and based on that she uses various effective teaching techniques to improve that student's work. Communication. Provides very useful feed backs and genuinely cares about what student are actually learning. Gives the opportunity to the students to share their ideas using what they learned in class. Creates diverse activities to make the lessons easier to understand, as well as to ensure students are participating.
- Being able to communicate with each student one on one.
- Giving life examples for our essays
- Dr. Cole was a great instructor in explaining exactly what was expected and answering any questions on the genre so the student would not have any confusion.

What do you think the instructor's greatest strengths are?

- Explaining concepts well.
- N/A
- helping students individually.
- Explaining the concepts of the assignments.
- English
- I believe her greatest strengths would be her knowledge, patience, and understanding of her material with her students.
- The professor provides great one on one help to try to aid on certain areas of difficulty where group assignments would not help as much.
- She makes it a priority for her students to understand what they need to understand. She forces group projects as daily participation and the group projects help because while in the groups, peers are helping each other.
- idk
- n/a
- Explaining things to aren't clear. She tries to explain and explain until you get it.
- The communication and the persistency of the tasks she assigns us to make us do it more.
- That she clarifies any confusion from the assignments, she had a midterm conference to see how I was doing, and she makes sure that her students succeeded

- The instructor's passion for the subject, made me more interested and excited about it as well. I learned many new, useful skills in this class, that I will be needing in the future.
- I really enjoyed this class and I think that my writing has improved.
- N/A
- Feedback on the essays, personally in the conference would be better.
- Overall she was a really great teacher, I enjoyed having her and plan to have her again next semester. She really helped me understand specific problem areas of my writing and increased my overall view of English.
- n/a
- It was a pretty good class, I just needed to put more effort in myself. The teaching was actually better than a lot of my other classes and I like the small classes.
